The present volume focusses on regional and national aspects of literatures in English and in particular on the literatures of Scotland, England, and Ireland in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Other parts of the world from Wales to the United States and from Australia to Nigeria are covered as well. Approaches oriented towards comparison, intertextuality, and translation enable the inclusion of literatures in languages other than English. Gender is a central area of interest, as is postcolonialism. The volume as a whole illustrates the large variety of ways in which territoriality can be constructed and theorized.

This text provides an excellent introduction and overview of narratology, a rapidly growing field in the humanities. Literary narratologists have provided many key concepts and analytical tools which are widely used in the interdisciplinary analysis of such narrative features as plot, point of view, speech, presentation, ideological perspective, and interpretation. The introduction explains the central concepts of narratology, their historical development, and draws together contemporary trends from many different disciplines into common focus. It offers a compendium of the development of narratology from classical poetics to the present. The essays are all prefaced by individual forewords helping the reader to place each individual selection in context. Recent developments are assessed across disciplines, highlighting the mutual influences of narratology and deconstruction, psychoanalysis, feminism, film, and media studies.
